Funeral Eulogy on George Pea-body, the Philitanthropist.

BY HON. ROBERT C. WINTHROP, DELIVERED

The following is an elaborate skotch of Gov.
Winthrop's address, as given by the New York

bo known of air men by me manned to the porary repose in Westminister Abbey, followed by that angust procession across the Atlantic, whose wake upon the waters will glow and aparkle to the end of time, growing more and more luminous with the lapse of years,—who, I say, can contemplate that career, from its humble commencement to its magnificent completion, without an irrepressible thrill of admiration, and almost of rapture? Who, certainly, can contemplate the immediate close of this extraordinary life without rejoicing, not only that it was so providentially postponed until he had been enabled, once more, to revisit his native land, to complete his great American benefactons, to hold personal intercourse with those friends at the South for whose welfare the largest and most cherished of those benefactions was designed, and to take solemn leave of those to whom he was bound by so many ties of affection or of reacting the largest attention, and for giving widest impression and influence to his at and inspiring example? For this, prety thus, as I believe, would have been the it gratifying consideration to our lamented and himself, could he have distinctly forcia all that has lampened since he left you a months since. Could it have been foretold as he embarked, with feeble strongth and origing stems, on beard his favorate Society.

MR. PLANDYTA MINITON. MR. PLABOUT AUBITION.

Our lamented friend was not, indeed, without ambition. He not only liked to do grand things, but he liked to do them in a grand way. We all remember those sumptious and princely bunquets with which he sometimes diversified the habitual simplicity and frugality of his daily life. He was not without deaded taste for occasional display,—call it even ostentation, if you will. We certainly may not ascribe to him a preeminent measure of that sort of charity which shuns publicity, which shrunks from observation, and which, according to one of our Savior's well remembered injunctions, "docth its alms in secret." He may, or he may not, have exercised as much of this kind of benthered as any of those in similar condition - MR. PLABODY'T AMBITION of, have exercised as much of this kind of be-cheence as may of those in similar condition round him. I fully believe that he did. We il understand, however, that "Of that best portles of a good man's life, His little, namely as unremembered acts Of kindness and of toe,"

"of the best period in the could not be considered as the flag of the flag of the could not have cannot be not record except on high—or in the grateful hearts of those who have been aided and relieved. That record shall be reveal on her after. The world can know little or nothing of it now. But any one must perceive, at a glance, that the sort of charity which our lamented friend illustrated and exercised was wholly incompatible with concealment or reserve. The great trusts which he ostablished, the great institutions which he founded, the capacious and coatly edifices which he created, were things that could not be hid, which could not be done in a corrier They were, in their own intrinsic and essential nature, patent to the world's eye. He could not have performed these noble acts un, his lifetime, as it was his peculiar choice to do, and as it will be his peculiar distinction and glory to have done, without suffering himself "to be seen of men;" without being known and recognized and eclebrated as their author. He must have postponed them all, as others have confounded in the struck from the notoriety and celebrity which insolutably attend upon such a career. He did not fail to romember, however—lor he was no siranger to the Bible—that there were at least two models of confounding group —bat he shrunk from the notoriety and celebrity which insolutably attend upon such a career. IIS DESHE AND AMILTY TO DO GOOD.

It is enough to say that of our lamented friend, as we have seen him and known him of late, that in him were united, as rarely, if over before, the largest desire and the largest ability to do good, that his will was, at least, commensurate with his wealth, and that nothing but the limited extent of even the most considerable earthy estate prevented his enjoying the very antequate of celestial biles.

"For when the rower of invention would Requires no other heaven."

And now, my friends, what wonder is it, that all that was mortal of such a man has come back to us, to-day, with such a convoy, and with such accompanying honors, as well aught have benefitted some mighty conqueror some princely hero? Was he not, indeed, a hero? Oh lit is not on the battlefield, or on the blackets was seen as the blackets was seen as the s and against have benefitted some mighty conqueror or some princely hero? Was in not, mideed, a hero? Oh lit is not on the buttlefield, or on the blood-stained ocean alone, that conquests arg achieved and vectories won. There are battles to be fought, there is a lifelong warfare to be the blood-stained ocean alone, that conquests arg and against our own solfish nature. And what so milet is harder than that which awaits the accumulator of great wealth. Who can every forget or remember without a shudder, the cemplatic estimony of the châracter of that conflicts in horder than that which awaits the accumulator of great wealth. Who can every forget or remember without a shudder, the cemplatic estimony of the châracter of that conflicts, which was borne by our blessed Saviour—who knew what was in man better than any may charge another trifling fee, but he will be suffered to the conflict, which was borne by our blessed Saviour—who knew what was in man better than any may have another trifling fee, but he will be suffered to the visitor. for its increase and accumulation; literally throwing out his bage like some adventurous aeronaut, who would mount higher and hugher to the skies; and really evalting, as he calculated from time to time, how little of all his debrous earnings he had at last left for himself; it is, as having furnished this new and living and magnetic example, which can never be lost to the slovy, never be lost to the interests of humanity, never fail to attract, inspire, and stimulate the lovers of their fellow men, as long as human want and human wealth shall consist upon the earth,—it is in this way, that our lamented friend has obtained a preeminence among the benefactors of his figs and like that of Shakespeare or Milton among patriots, or that of Shakespeare or Milton among potts that of Shakespeare or Milton monog potts. rulers of thy own State, all eager to unite in paying such homage to a career of grand but simple beneficence, as neither rank mer for tune, nor learning nor genius, could ever have commanded. Ohies of the Republic, representatives and more than representatives of royal tay, are not absent from thy bier. Nothing is wanting to give emphasis to thy example Wothing is wanting to fill up the measure of the fance. But what earthly honor, what accumulation of earthly honors shall compare for a moment with the supreme hope and trust which we all humbly and devoutly cheriah at this hour, that when the struggles and the victories, the fungs and the pagents of time shall all be ended and the great awards of tentry and the made up, thou mayes the found among those who as "more than conquestors, through Him who lored us." And so we bid thee farewell, brave, honest, noble-hearted friend of mankind!

I am not without sathorty for saying that it was among the fondest wishes of his whole mature life I cannot forget that, in one of those confidential consultations with which he honored me some years since, after unfolding his plans and telling me substantially all that he designed to do—forginal designing,—and when I was filled with admiration and amazement at the magnitude and sublimity of his purposes, he said to me, with that guilcless simplicity which characterized so much of his social intercurses and conversation, "Why, Mr. Winthrop, this is no new idea to me. From the earliest years of my manhood, I have contemplated some such disposition of my property; and I have prayed, my Heavenly Father, day by day, that I might be enabled, before I died, to show my greats that for the blessings which IIc has bestowed upon me, by doing some great good to my fellow-men."

THE EVTENT OF HIS MUNIFICENCE:

It would afford a most inadequate measure of his muniference, were I to sum up the dollars or the pounds he has distributed; or the number of persons whom his peronnial provisions, for dwellings or for schools, will have included, in years to come, on one side of the Atlantic or the other. Tried even by this marrow test, his beneficence has a degree which has almost made it a new thing in the world; it is as having calculated a widen and adapted the machine provised the standard of munificence to a degree which has almost made it a new thing in the world; it is, as having childred a widen and adapted the machinery, of his bounty, which almost entitle him to the credit of an inventor; it is, as having discarded all considerations of east, or the provision of his fortune, and not its alsays, it is a having discarded all considerations of east, rered, condition, nationality, in his world, wide philanthropy, regarding nothing human as alien to him; it is, as having deliberately stripped himself is his lifetime of the property he had so laborously acquired; delighting as would be a laborously acquired; de

It is a matter of surprise that the business nen of Titusville have never awakened to the importance of securing the construction of a plank road from Shanburg to the, intersection of a plank road from Shanburg to the, intersection of the Titusville and Pleasantville road. The distance is about three miles, no grading would be required, and the cost of ditching and plank-ing would be comparatively small. The trade of Shanburg and vicinity is already very large, and is very rand vicinity is already very large, and is very rand vicinity is already very large, and is very rapidly increasing, and if our busi-ness men wish to secure it beyond any contin-provisions, etc., and find it much more advan-tageous to haul their goods a distance of six miles on a level grade, than to pull the same cargoes three miles up hill from Miller. At oh times the price of hauling from Titus to Shamburg, a distance of six miles, is no more per ton than hauling from Miller to ung, a distance of only three miles. .But Shannour, a custance or only circe miles. Lour in bad weather, teaming from this point to Shannourig is practically suspended; the road is in a horrible condition, and the wreeks of wagons and buggies with which it is always strowed eight much testingue of its inswers. ed give ample testimony of its impassibili

The travel and trade of Shamburg at such times is necessarily diverted to Miller, and the one hundled tous of coal per day which is now consumed in that region, to say nothing of the other immens supplies which hight be continuously furnished by Titusville merchants, is lost until the era of good wheeling returns.

Now here is a project which should interest every merchant and manufacturer in Titus-ville. Shall our citizens seemed in Titusthe construction of three miles of plank road, or will they wait for some more enterprising community to head them off by tapping the same locality and secure the rich rewards of a steady, uninterrupted, and rapidly growing rathe. The Titusville and Pithole Plank traffic. Road Company should have made this extension long ago on their own account, but they have not done so. Now let a meeting of our busiess men be called, an organization effected. and a charter applied for, or else let a subscrip-tion be started both at Titusville and Shum-burg, and a free road be constructed. There are a dozen firms in Titusville who could build At Cost. this road at their own expense, and make a profit on their investment from the increaced trade of a single year. Who will move in the

DARING SCHLME TO ROB THE WESTFIELD NATIONAL BANK—A correspondent of the Buffalo Express gives the particulars of a murderous attempt on Sunday, to 10h the First National Bank, in the village of Westfield.— The villians, however, most signally failed. They made an entrance into the cellar under They made an entrance into the cellur under the bank through a window, and mounted the tairs to a door which leads into a small room opening into the back office, and which is oc cupied by a young norn named Wallace. Wal-lace heard a noise, and thinking it was caused by tats, by perfectly quiet; soon he discover-ed the noise came from some one cutting the door with a knife. He immediately spran door with a knife. He immediately sprang up and caught a revolver, which is kept for such emergencies. Just at this mo-ment the robbers had made a hole through the doer and hearing the noise inside decamped through the cellar. Wallace ran to the win-dow, throw up the sash and fired at one of the men, and just see he fired he was fired at by an-other, the ball passing under his arm and into the window sill. . About half-past nine o'clock, last evening, a serious runaway accident occurred on Diamond street, the establishment belonging to D. R. Honderson, of Pleasantville. The horses had just been taken from the stables of the U. S. Hatel and M. Hatel. Hotel, and Mr. Henderson and his family, consisting of two ladies and his son, had just sent d themselves in the sleigh, when the animal took fright at some object and started at a ter-rific pace. Turning abruptly from Martin in-to Diumond street, the sleigh was overturned and its occupants thrown out unhur The horses then ran frantically on till they reached the iron lamp-post at the intersection of Diamond and Pine streets, where one of them leaped violently against it, striking it with his forehead, and was almost instantly killed. The other horse was entirely stripped of his harness by the force of the collision, but mfore he could recover himself and get away he was secured by Capt. W. C. Allen, of the Long Roll. The team was highly valuable and the loss to Mr. Henderson is serious, but he is doubtless thankful that under the circumstances described, the occupants of the sleigh esmore terrible misfortune HOMICIDE AT RENO.—The Oil City Times

Young immediately grabbed the knife from Brown, and stabbed him in the stomach, producing a serious if not a fatal wound. Informa tion was shortly afterwar, s given to Justice C. E. Lytle, at Franklin, who issued warrant to the Sheriff and Deputy Sheriff C S. Mark proceeded to the spot, where he found Young in the house, guarded by some of the workmen on the road. The Deputy Sheriff ar ested Young and took him before Justic Lytle, where the defendant acknowledged th stabbing. He was committed to jail to awa the result of the injury and for trial. I is reported to have died from the effects.

FRANKLIN, Pa., Fob. 9, 1870. REV. HENRY PURDON, Tetusville, Pa.—Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the Managers of the Association held at Oil City to-day, I intro-duced the subject of the Drake Testimonial, nd secured the passage of a resolution author izing the sending of blunk subscription lists with printed heading, to every manager in the fifty districts, with instructions to make the burg road is in fine condition for wheeling, it is always thronged with teams. GIL URLER Fr., Feb. 10, 1870. Editors Morning II. raid: I see that the Watren Vail and the Franklin papers are raising quite a howl over the "Corpapers are many quarter now over the "Courty Ranguin," as may call it, of Senator Low-ry to carry through our New County bill, or, to use their slang, the "New County Swindle." Those editors could more appropriately be called swindlers for thus opposing legislation that is clearly and manifestly for the good, not only of the New County territor but also of the counties from which it is take but also of the counties from which it is taken. They ought, as public meastle know more of the wants of the people of this vicinity than they appear to; or, if not ignorant of those wants, they must acknowledge that their solitals and dogged opposition to a measure of very great necessity, is positive proof of infinite reater corruption and depravi at than the acts of which they accu greater mater Lowry. . It is a very great swindle of the people of this territory, to prevent the election of a new county, when it is known to every intelligent person in the three counties, that our business cannot be done and justice cannot be administered with the counties as a present organized. If we view things in their true light, we must according that it is a mordamaging disgrace to those editors, to make "sharp practice" necessary to accomplish so de sirable and laudable a measure as the crection of our new county, and infinitely meaner than any means that have been or will be resorted

"LAUGH AND GROW FVI."-The Franklin

Citizen has become a regular joker's budget, and to show what a funny man may actually accomplish in that way, at Franklin, when he accomplish in that way, at Franklin, when he gives his attention to it, we copy the following tothox-bursting and collicky connectities from the last number of that sprightly almanae:

The Tinswillo-Hearlan says that ePranklin has been dogd fifty year? The new county finds it a tribule-some corpse.

The Pleasantville (tas L-yht gives out a great deal more gas than light on its new county scheme. Therein it resembles the Titusville HERALD.

The Titusville HERALD was formerly said.

The Titusville HERALD was formerly said (by its editor) to be a great expositor of gener-al oil operations. It now confines its talents specially to B. S. oil. A citizen of Titusville wants a mowing mechine purchased by the city dads to keep th weeds cut on the streets, so that the grass will not monopolize the sidewalks.

not monopolize the sidewalks.

Mr. Ames, of the House Committee on New Counties called a meeting of the committee a few days ago, for the consideration of the New County bill, but finding things looking rather squally pocketed the said bill and fell back on Titusville in good order. Ames is "as willin a little critter as you ever sea."

Senator Allen proposed an amendment to the Petroleum County bill, by which a new coun-ty should be made from Eric and Crawford, to be called Lowry. Judas county would be had enough, but Lowry county! Good Lord de-liver us! We wouldn't call a States prison by such a mame.

We don't wish to appear uncharitable, but from a studious examination of the foregoing fragments we do scriously suspect that in the act of perpetuation the editor of the Cutzen intended to provoke a lugh. Whether that intention was a an I med after the "jokes" appeared in print, we do not venture to say, appended, would seem to have been taken from Allen's speech) We ferr it is not 'entirely or iginal with the C-tizen; but how any "Citi en" of Franklin, or even of Warren, could erack such a joke w.thout cracking his crani um, we don't undertake to fathom. We only beg him to stop at once. It may be fou for the Franklin Almonac, but it will be death to Ames. He can't stend it! MASQUERADING -Jug of the finest mas querading parties of the finest mas-querading parties of the serson was given last ovening at the Mandon House in this city. The affair was private, and in numbers, selectness, brilliance of tolettes, and diversity of costumes, excelled anything of similar charac-ter ever held in the city, a fact of which the originator may well be proud. We have not time to particularize upon the many bewilder-ing and dazzling toilettes, nor the complete appointments whereby the evening was rendered so enjoyable to all present. The music bewitched with its sweetness, the halls were promonaded by Spanish senoritas and bold buccancers, monks hob-nobbed with gipseys, pirates and priests alike mingled in the giddy dance with peasant girl and princess, whi knights and ladies from the courts of Lou he Fourteenth, whispered and smiled Leneat heir dominoes to representatives of our modern Republican aesemblages.

Mr. Adams, son of the gentleman whose name is famous in connection with the first establishment of the express business in th United States, has his country residence about three miles from Cambridge, Mass. Through this gentleman's kindness, his gallery of paintings is open to the public every Tuesday after-noon. Learning this fact, I induced a friend of mine, who is quite a connoiseur in matter of art, to accompany me thither for a visit.

One fine afternoon we started out. Within twenty minutes we were past Mt. Auburn and fairly in the open country. It was one of those close, crisp, autumnal days, when merely to live is a privilege. In these, of all days in the year, one's whole being is stirred up and invigorated by the influence of outside nature The year has passed the critical period of its birth, the saft, yielding inconstancy of its youth, the flush and vigor of its early mangood, and now has entered upon the decline of its life. Its mission all accomplished, its w all done, now it enjoys the fruits of its labor the dignified leisure of an age as yet in the full possession of all its powers. Alike store a full possession of all its powers. Alike store-house and granary, garden and field, teen with the rowards of the carnest labor and the watchful care of the past months. The flowers, the forerunners of that which is to come, have long since passed away. Now all the pledges which they gave are redeemed, and the earth hastens eagerly to show its gratitude in every way. Nature had taken especial pains for this day. Her preparations had been making for some time, with the full determination that this day should be the crowning event of the season. The distant hills "were bathed in one of those soft, illusive grays which must be the despair of the printer." The clear, still-flowing river reflected back from its bosom the brilliant crin son and orange tints of the trees which grey appeared in print, we no not volume to any son and mangetimes of the overs which gives the oldines metric. There is evidence enough of this in the playful allusion to Ames (which, from the quotation marks) stretching back on either side from the quiet road, afforded glimpses of the country houses of Bostonians, nostled amid clumps of cluss and maples, now clothed in all the gorgeousnes of their autumnal robes. After an l ve reached our destination. In front of on was a smooth lawn, perhaps an eighth of a mile in length. Having two or three tow ers over the different wings, and being fairly scircled with balconies, it had from that di tance a very light and niry appearance. Passing a handsome lodge, we went directly to the house, and were led immediately to the Gallories, through halls lined with classical bronzes The Gallery is situated in the second story and is a very large room, nearly square, lighted from the ceiling entirely. The walls were covered with paintings, the tables grounce with them. Mr. Adams has several or Box stadt, among them his latest—the scene the Sierra Neyadas-which was pine in his gallery immediately after its exhibition at Child's, on Tremont street, and which, con-sequently, New York and the Western cities have not had any opportunity of seeing. This had the post of honor in the room and all the advantage of good light. There were a large number of modern French paintings, and some few by German artists. One set scene, a ship aboring in a storm, struck me as being quit se effective in its way as anything in The most impressive painting in the galler was one whose scene was laid in a prison cell A young girl, with a face of marble palaness A young giri, with a most open which was some implement of writing. Before her stood implement of turture. Before her stood a monk in robe and cowl of middle age and sterr determined face -- a face to which nity had long been a stranger. Bohind the monk wa another form—a clerk taking down, apparent ly, the confession of the female. The entire power of the painting lay in the expression of the three faces, or of the trio rather, for about the clork there was nothing worthy of notice. But that terrible look of despair upon the girl's face, the obstinate decided acuelty in monk's, were nearly perfect of their kind. enjoyed the privilege so kindly extended very fluch. The generosity which prompts this action of Mr. Adams is greatly to be com Mr. Adams' gallery is known, I believe, as one of the finest owned by private gentlemer in the country, and this, of course, enhances the liberality of the act. Indeed, the example given to men of wealth to use this for the ben
